Unpopular since 2004

Three years after their first album, “Central Intelligence Airlines”, Mostly Harmless are back with “Starpunks Coffee”. Coming out in the fall of 2013, the record continues where the debut left off, delivering 14 songs in about half an hour.

Mostly Harmless stay true to their style and play fast punkrock with powerful backing vocals, throwing in an occasional reggae part here and there.

And while they address both political and personal issues in their lyrics, they never lose that bit of wry humor that has become their trademark. In good old DIY-fashion, “Starpunks Coffee” was recorded in the band’s own Rock-the-Cow-Studios with good friend (and future producer legend) Philip Röder.

Like the first album, it is being released by the label BSC Music from Münsing.

Mostly Harmless are looking forward to everyone who wants to drop in at Starpunks Coffee for a drink or a dance. There’s enough room for everyone – except for killjoys.
